Senior Women - LIST

A New Age for Learning: future directions for digital literacy for senior women

The LIST Final Conference will be held on Wednesday 28 October 2015 in the newly built, University of Strathclyde, Technology and Innovation Centre. The conference is FREE and policy makers, EU stakeholders, education and training providers, and people involved in intergenerational learning are welcome to attend.

The theme of the international conference is 'A New Age for Learning: future directions for digital literacy for senior women'. The conference is focussed on influencing European policy on the need for older women to have wider access and better provision of digital literacy training. The conference will be attended by stakeholders from around Europe.

Keynote Speaker: Liz Mestheneos, AGE Platform Europe

Interactive presentations showcasing trainee and tutor experiences of the LIST programme 'Living and working in the Digital Age' – Interpretation will be provided in Polish and German.
